“In any great growth organization, you create a bar, and then just before you hit that bar you raise it. Having someone from the outside who has seen lots of different businesses, to provide some outside counsel is what we needed to raise that bar. This is what the CFO Centre provided us. At first, Patrick was brought in to help us through cash flow challenges and arrange strategic meetings with key banks to develop the right partnership. He quickly put a financial infrastructure in place that aligned with the financial needs of our business. Patrick gets brought in for many different things, and we consider him an extension of our management team, providing ongoing strategic counsel. In order to keep business on track, you have to have the right people, and Patrick was one of those.”
